TVMLC continues its mission to help commercial television stations deal with the three US performing rights organizations – ASCAP, BMI and SESAC (the PROs). We negotiate the music performance rights licenses that stations sign with the PROs and design and administer the method of allocating industry-wide fees among stations licensed by these organizations, subject to agreement of the PRO or court approval.

We have recently finished negotiation of 4-year industry license agreements with SESAC that will be available shortly for your signature. TVMLC is in the process of negotiating new TV industry music performance licenses with ASCAP. The ASCAP licenses expired at the end of 2016. BMI licenses expire at the end of 2017.

Periodically, we request that our member stations give TVMLC authorization to represent them in connection with the local television industry's negotiations, any future rate court litigation and/or rate-setting arbitration, and implementation of interim and final agreements with ASCAP, BMI, and SESAC regarding public performance music license fees and terms. We have not made this request in several years and need to update our records.
